

What's being said about... MOON TEARS

"Readers...will get a sense of the challenges that citizens of all ages faced during WWII."

Publishers Weekly/BookLife

"A fascinating account of a ragtag group of children trying to keep their remote California town alive while their parents serve on the battlefields and in the factories of WWII, Moon Tears is a touching story of youth's resourcefulness and resiliency."

Polly Holyoke, Award-Winning Author of The Neptune Project

"Receiving inside information about your writing process and research to create Moon Tears gave my students an amazingly enriched reading experience! We enjoyed discovering more about the unique perspective of American children during World War II. Your book and presentation leave a lasting impression!"

Janet H., 6th Grade Language Arts Teacher

What's being said about... MISS MUFFET & BITSY

"My students absolutely loved hearing the story! My classroom is beside the one you were presenting in, and my students said, 'I wish we could be in there all day. They're having ALL the fun!'"

Meagan W., Kindergarten Teacher

"Muffet's presentation was so much fun. The students were engaged with Muffet and Bitsy, and most of all, the best birthday party ever!"

Patricia V., Media Center Coordinator

For Grades K-1:

When Nursery Rhymes Collide: The World of Miss Muffet & Bitsy

Join us for a peek into the world where

Little Miss Muffet and the Itsy-Bitsy Spider meet. The real “Miss Muffet” reads the story and engages children with her interactive presentation including props, screams, and the soon-to-be-famous “Spider Pledge!”

For Grades 2-3:

How'd You Think of That?

Muffet takes students on a journey along the path of creating a picture book. This hands-on presentation leads students on the way to their next masterpiece! She entertains students with lively examples of how Miss Muffet & Bitsy grew from a spider's unexpected inspiration to a full-fledged picture book.

For Grades 4-5:

What Do Authors DO All Day?

How do you become a writer? With this interactive presentation, students learn the “Ins-and-Outs” of an author's day and find out what the career of a writer is like. Muffet includes students in the presentation as they come up with book ideas of their own and learn a few new things about history along the way.

Sooo...What was it like for an American kid during World War II?

What would it have been like to live during the early 1940's? What would you be collecting at school for the war effort? How would you have helped your country? Learn about the intriguing life of an American kid during the war in this unique presentation.

On a Mission to Make Reading and Writing FUN!

Muffet enjoys sharing both her books and the stories behind them. She offers presentations for every grade as well as conferences and seminars.

For Grades 6-12:

It All Starts with a Story to Tell...

into fictional realms by unlocking their imaginations and sending them on a journey into the unknown. Along the way, students get a sneak peek into the world of Muffet's upcoming novel.

During this fun, upbeat, interactive talk, students hear first-hand what it is like to write a novel. Muffet walks them through the world behind Moon Tears—from weaving an intriguing plotline to developing characters readers care about. She explains how to create settings that draw readers into another world and how to write stories that stem from actual experiences. Muffet makes reading and storytelling “real” for students. They put themselves in the characters' shoes, “try on” their lives, and ask the key question: “What if...” This presentation leads students
